KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS HOLD GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATION

Golden Degree Given to Men Who Have Been Members for Twenty-five Years.

MUST BE REDUCED

Edward B. Caulkins, Jason street, a member of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, addressed the Rotary Club at the Middlesex Sportsman's clubhouse Wednesday noon. His subject was "Economic Problems".

The speaker's plea was for economy in federal expenses. One dollar out of every five spent by citizens goes to the support of the government. There is nothing being done to reduce these expenses to correspond with the efforts of corporations. The increase in government expenses has been terrific as in 1913 only $1.00 of each $15.50 was taxed by the government.

The speaker explained how the national chamber had studied governmental expenses and had found and recommended to Congress how $500, 000,000 could be saved in 1932 and 1933. 50% of the government budget is irreduceable, but much of the remainder could be saved through reorganization of public bureaus.

In 1913 there were five independent bureaus already established in Washington. Now there are fortytwo bureaus, the largest being the enthusiastic audience

The principal speaker was Rev. Edwin A. Aiken, pastor of the Mt Vernon Congregational church of Boston, an advocate of international peace. Born in China, and with service in the United States forces in Europe during the World War as well as with the National Guard on the Mexican border, he has had ample opportunity to observe sentiment abroad, and to realize conditions brought about by war. Mr. Aiken said that advocates of peace should not be discouraged by recent happenings in the Orient. Rather they should be stimulated to renewed efforts to secure world peace. He admitted that there were discouraging aspects of the international situation - that war was at the Robbins Memorial Town Hall menacing in several countries, and on each of the above dates in the that the total of armaments was afternoon from 2:00 until 4:00. much greater than just before the World War. On the other hand, he reminded his hearers of several steps toward peace, such as the Kellogg Peace Pact, the World Court and the League of Nations. The task before peace-lovers, he declared, was the development of a will to peace" among the people Obstacles existed, he acknowledged, such as the intense spirit of nationalism in many lands, economic ri valry among different countries and heavy armaments, which some people were tempted to use. All of these things create fear. He expressed himself as opposed to compulsory military service.

He suggested the organization of local groups to study conditions and help build up the will to peace. These groups could be spread further and further until they became a powerful influence for peace.

There will be another meeting of the Peacemakers soon, looking toward the promotion of a Peace Society here. Mrs. Roscoe R. Perry is temporary chairman of the organization, Mrs. John Matthews is secretary, and Miss Evelyn Frost is treasurer.

The business of the town meeting opened auspiciously for an early adjournment when three streets, Egerton road, Glen avenue and Gloucester street, were rejected in short order, without discussion.

But the next street on the list was Margaret street, which furnished enough competition for the whole evening. Earle C. One of the most ambitious efforts ever attempted to raise funds will be made on Friday night, April 8 by Stanley Hill Post No. 38, American Legion of Lexington, when it will stage an all-star wrestling show at Cary Memorial Hall, in Lexing-

None other than the famous Gus Sonnenberg, an American Legion, haire and former heavyweight champion, has agreed to top the card in a finish match, best two in three falls, under American Wrestling Association rules, with Pat Mc-Kay, another member of the Amer

The securing of the signature of Sonnenberg for a match of this importance was due to the efforts of Albert A. Ross, past commander of the Post and chairman of the committee in charge of the mat tournat ment. Mr. Ross got in touch with Paul Bowser, a Lexingtonian, and the leading wrestling promoter of Boston, and together they got in touch with Sonnenberg, who readily agreed to appear when he learned the aims of Stanley Hill Post.

For the semiwindup bout, he has signed Al Morelli, Boston College star, who has a host of friends in Lexington and vicinity, to meet Pat Reilly of the University of Texas Morelli right now is the greatest heavyweight prospect among professional wrestlers, and unless unfore seen circumstances arrive; he will be knocking at the championship door before many weeks have passed. In more than one hundred battles. Morelli has lost but once and recently held Gus Sonnenberg to a thirty-minute draw in what was considered the most spectacular battle ever staged at the Boston

APRIL FOOLS — AND OTHERS

Today is April Fool's Day, so we repeat the age-old warning, "Look out you don't get fooled!" But probably most of us will get fooled, just the same - all except the man who spends his efforts during a valuable day in avoiding getting fooled; and, perhaps he will thus be fooled worse than anybody else! Or possibly the worst fooled person will be the one who spends priceless hours trying to fool everyone else.

It is pretty much the same in life, and the wise man knows it. He is resigned to the fact that helis going to get fooled sometimes, for it is bound to be so in a lifetime. He knows that he is going to misplace faith in people and things occasionally. But he also knows that it is supremely important to keep his faith in people and things generally, for without such faith accomplishment and worth-while living are impossible. He knows, too, that the very exhibition of faith sometimes turns fools from their folly and wins them to dealing fairly with him and others. He is certain that without mutual faith people could not live in the world together, could not construct anything of worth.

We have all seen the man who is too "smart" to be fooled. He has his eye on everyone, he suspects the whole world, he is constantly on the defensive. "You can't fool me", he informs everyone. And perhaps they can't. But he has fooled himself. He has grown hard and sharp and wary, and has lost those finer, gentler things that go so far to make life worth living. He has chilled and killed the faith of others who would have helpfully reached out to him. And he has chilled and killed his own faith upon which depends real achievement.

We have also seen the type of man who sets out in life to fool others. If he is successful in doing it, he is perhaps the greatest fool of all. Abraham Lincoln said, "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and you can fool all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time". Since then some cynic has added, "But you don't need to fool all of the people all of the time - only a big enough proportion to get by".

Well, perhaps that's so, but can you magine a more foolish person than he who bases his actions on such an assumption, and proceeds to turn traitor to mankind and the world, who cuts himself off from humanity in this way?

And did it ever occur to you that some of the greatest of men have been those who seemed to be the biggest fools - those who went on steadfastly believing in something or someone in spite of repeated defeats and betrayals and the jeers of the world? Doubtless hundreds tapped their heads and grinned when they saw Fulton studying and working over that "fool contraption" of his, the steamboat, and Goodyear with his rubber coat that would only stick to the furniture, and those religious teachers who believed almost against the evidence of their eyes that men could some time be taught to be decent and kindly and good. You have read of Parsifal - literally "the Poor Fool".

No, you can't help getting fooled sometimes, either today or in the rest of the days of your life. What of it? As an Arlington man said the other day, "But, man, you've gat to trust someone, or you can't live".

THE "SUPERIOR" RACE

The average man in the street knows very little about "races", though he is quite familiar with "nationalities", for anthropology is a new science. But he is rapidly being informed on the subject, mostly - rather unfortunately - by the over-zealous admirers of the so-called "Nordic" race.

We say "unfortunately", because it is always unfortunate when the public gets its first knowledge of a subject from the lips of zealots. And not a few of the eulogists of the Nordic race are zealots. The result is that thousands upon thousands of people who conceive themselves to be non-Nordics are beginning to develop a particularly warm dislike for those who call themselves Nordic.

Many very intelligent people who went to school a generation or two ago may ask in wonder, "What is a Nordic, anyway?" They ask because the modern classification of races is quite different from that of a few years ago. We may explain, then, that today we are told that there are but three main races -- the Caucassian, the Mongoloid and the Negroid, or the white, yellow and black. The white race is divided into three races - the Nordic, the Mediterranean and the Alpine. The Nordic is described as tall, longheaded, light-haired and blue-eyed; the Mediterranean as short, slight, long-headed, dark-haired and dark-eyed; the Alpine as of medium stature with a round head and medium hair and eyes.

A curious fact is that in no country can there be found any pure race. Each white nation is made up of an infinitely complicated crossing and re-crossing of these three races. The nearest approach to a pure Nordic race, for instance, is in Scandinavia. Germany is mainly a mixture of Nordic and Alpine, France a mixture of all three races, Italy mainly a mixture of Mediterranean and Alpine, while England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales are a mixture of Nordic and Mediterranean, with practically no Alpine

The Germans and English, in particular, conceive themselves to be Nordic, and it is from English and German sources that come the most ardent paeans of praise for all that is Nordic. Yet, no less a person than Henry Fairfield Osborne, himself a devoted admirer of the Nordig, and one of the greatest authorities in the world, declares that Germany is not really Nordic, but overwhelm-

As far as England is concerned, when one remembers that the basis of British stock was Iberian and therefore Mediterranean. and that that wonderful race, the Celts were partly Mediterranean and partly Nordic, it is very hard to believe that a handful of Angle-Saxons from Scandinavia and Northern Germany entirely supplanted the earlier dwellers. In all likelihood the English are at least as much Mediterranean as Nordic. And Ireland, Scotland and Wales present pretty nearly the same racial mixture as England.

Undoubtedly the Nordic was a very fine and brave and able man, and no doubt his descendants - if one can at this late day identify them — are likewise, yet nowhere has he been as great as where liberally mixed with the Mediterranean, as in Britain and in Ancient Greece. Indeed, it has always been the mixture of two fine races that has produced the greatest men and women. Some day we may know just what mixtures bring the good results and which the bad. As yet we can only guess, In the United States may be found almost all the races of the earth. Some time, out of them all may develop an "American race", which, let us hope, will be the finest of all races. In the meantime the loud proclamation of superiority on the part of any one portion of our inhabitants who conceive themselves to belong to one race ,tends not only to produce swell-headedness among the proclaimers, but to incite a marked dislike in other quarters which may produce unpleasant feeling.

Here and There

The annual town meeting closed its books Wednesday evening in a blaze of economy. The Finance Commit-tee and its conservative program reigned supreme. Jake Bitzer says that he has been attending town meetings for forty years, and never before has seen a list of Finance Committee recommendations come through one hundred percent intact.

Mr. Davis, chairman of the justly praised committee, said that he hopes that never again will the necessarily conservative recommendations of the Finance Committee go through without substitution or alteration. We gathered that he was, not wishing himself or his successors any hard luck in the future, but hoped that the reasons for the present era of lid sitting will be on the way toward eradication before the next annual Unlike most men of finance of the present day, Mr. Davis is an optimist.

But the proponents of street construction did not go down without a struggle. In fact the Margaret Street Improvement Association put up such a determined battle that it seemed likely for a while that the unbroken string of victories of the Finance Committee was destined to suffer a set-back.

The residents of Margaret street and vicinity were not satisfied with reiterating the statement that the condition of the street was deplorable. They had motion pictures which conclusively proved the condition of the street. In effect they took every Town Meeting Member present for a ride up and down that street, and what a rifle! It is remarkable that any machine or any passenger could survive the trip. But the Town Meeting Members survived. They voted down that street with the rest, although they must have voted regretfully.

A week ago in the opening session the town meeting members went through the first three streets to be considered like a whirl-wind. And, like any good field general, Charles Fitch, who was apparently in favor of constructing some streets this year, put an end to the rout by calling time out. Time out came in the form of an adjournment for a week. But as it turned out, the move failed to break up the rally. A week's rest merely put the expense fighters right on edge.

In newspaper headlines the Fi-nance Committee is frequently refer-red to as the "Fin. Com." Our fellow citizens who were so anxious for street construction might think the abbreviation incomplete. Perhaps it ought to read, "Fin. Tooth Com."

BURGLARIZED FRIDAY

Two store breaks occurred in the centre early last Friday morning or late the night previous with little satisfaction to the thieves. One was in the N. J. Hardy Co. bakery store office, discovered early Friday morning by Officer White. The combination and the handles of the safe had been knocked off but the safe was not opened and apparently nothing else

The other break was in the Cen tral Dry Goods Co., discovered by Mr. Lear upon opening the store in the morning. The burglars followed the same tacties as in the bakery store. The combination and handles of this safe were knocked off, also, but no when the police were investigating. Officer Scannell found a quarter for thirds of these are women. Trinity Baptist Church

Easter was a full day at the Trinity Baptist Church, beginning a half hour earlier than usual and ending later in the evening with many unusual events to make it interesting. Minister Emeritus, Rev. James E. Norcross, took part in the morning services when there were twenty-two baptized, and it was announced that two had been received into the Church on the preceding Sunday, and that twenty-seven were being received by letter, which made a total of fifty-two new members on Easter Sunday. The special music included the anthems, "Hallelujah, Christ Is Risen", by Simper; "On Wings of Living Light", by Hosmer; "Jesus Lives", by Spinney, rendered by the choir, and "Awake, Arise", by Edwards as a cornet solo by Kenneth Draper.

In the evening "The Cross Trium phant", a pageant written by Mattle B. Shannan, was presented by the young people's department of the Church School. It was given under the direction of Mrs. Gordon E. Bigelow, the costumes were prepared by Mrs. Harry Edwards and Mrs. Harry

Earle, and Arthur Blaser had charge of the scenery. The cast:

"Easter" Evelyn Thorne: "Faith", June Whitehouse: "Truth", Margarite O'Brien: "Cheeza" (Herod's Steward), Richard Wilson: "Joanna" (wife of Cheeza), Barbara Buchanan: "Susanna" (friend of Joanna's), Dorice Fisch; "Mary Magdalene", Isabel Adams; "Mary, Mother of Jesus". The Trinity Choir sang. The Junior, Primary and Beginners Departments took part in the early part of the evening service. Princess Ataloa, a Chickasaw Indian, born and reared in old Indian territory, sang and spoke at the service, also. She was educated in public and private schools and has degrees from Columbia University and Calitornia University.

Universalist Church

A pageant, written, directed and produced by the members of the Universalist Church, was an Easter feature. The morning service was out of the ordinary in that there was special music for the occasion, and the pastor, Rev. Rubens Rea Hadley. preached on "Easter, the Light of the World". The music included "Romance from Second Concerto", an organ and violin duet, by Wieniawski; "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth", from "The Messiah", by Handel; "By Early Morning Light", by Reiman-Dickinson; "As Torrents in Summer", by Elgar, and "Martiale",
